

Mercedes-Benz SLS AMG

The Mercedes-Benz SL55 AMG was presented to the public for the first time in September 2009. With its wide radiator grille and large Mercedes-Benz star, striking gullwing doors and fins mounted behind the front fenders, the first clean-sheet design developed by AMG is reminiscent of the legendary SLR coupé or the 300 SL from the mid 1950s. But the fascination of the two-seater with the timeless retro design isn't just about the aesthetics but involves the technical features too. The heart of this exceptional vehicle beats from under the long bonnet. The world's most powerful series eight-cylinder 6208 cc engine generates a sensational 571 hp at 6,800 rpm. On developing the V8 engine, bearing the internal designation M159, further, a conscious decision was made not to use an oil pan. Instead the SL's engine is supplied with oil from a separate dry sump tank, thus allowing it to be mounted very low down in the vehicle close to the front axle. As a result the gullwing sensation has an almost optimum weight distribution (47 percent on the front axle) that benefits both the traction and cornering performance. What's more, the road version of the racing sports car made consistent use of lightweight construction. Thus both the chassis and the bodywork are made of aluminium and weigh in at just 2,417 kilos.

Conclusion: the gullwing wonder with its mix of performance, handling and design already sets standards and is destined to soon become a sports car icon that may well write automobile history.
